

that PLANET
is DANCING

By KEN LUBER

LOGLINE

SCI-FI • COMEDY • SPACE ADVENTURE ... Wally Reddy, an aging, former TV dancer, and King, along with wannabe rap star, the "Q," in a terrible case of interplanetary confusion and miscalculated identity, are abducted to a faraway galaxy to lead a grass-roots insurrection against a maniacal Despot and his oppressive regime.

SYNOPSIS

Light years from earth, on the tiny planet "Schulz-Lite," a ruthless tyrant Ky Yam Khan (the HO, "Head of Office") along with his sultry mistress Anu, and a bully army, rule over the enslaved inhabitants (the "Schulzies").

Meanwhile, on planet Earth, the luckless WALLY REDDY, part-time jewelry salesman, one-time TV sensation with his own DANCERCIZE show, currently struggles to reinvent his career in TV commercials.

Wait! Back on Schulz-Lite, MARCO CORT, a lowly surveillance technician, has a different career trajectory for Wally. An accidental bump of a systems interface jolts the high-tech system into a frenetic display of diverse, alien soap operas, finally settling on "The Wally Reddy Workout Show."

The sheer energy and vitality displayed in Wally's dancersize routines inspires Marco. The TV star's rousing message - "Every turn you take, every choice you make, turns your life around!" - convinces Marco that Wally is the man to avenge his father's murder and lead his people against the brutal HO.

Unaware of a fifteen-year radio-delay-signal between planets, Marco convinces his trusted comrades, the beautiful EL BENTACOY and high-techie whiz CLAUDE VERMAINE, to locate the earth-bound Wally and, in a daring, interstellar raid, using the planet's only rickety space shuttle, abduct Wally along with the cab driver, the aspiring rap legend-to-be Don Q-O-T, and take them back to Wally's apartment.

Against their wills, Wally and the "Q" are swept into the revolutionary fervor of Marco and his comrades. A wild dance craze, "The Wally," spreads through the mountain caves and jungle outposts, inspiring the helpless. The planet goes dancing! But love doesn't stop for a fierce, against-all-odds revolution. Wally and El Bentacoy fall madly in love, and the Q finds eternal romance with Deva, the beautiful castle dancer. Young and old Schulzies coalesce into a mighty, force. Led by the two song-and-dance men, Wally and the Q, Marco's army, against overwhelming forces and high-tech weaponry, finally triumphs over the HO and brings peace and freedom to the Schulz-Lite planet.

WRITERS STATEMENT

No problem quoting Einstein when it comes to space and time, but he admitted more than once that his theory did not extend to dancing or rapping. That's why out-of-shape, out-of-luck Wally Reddy, once king of the TV exercise craze, along with the rapper "Q," who minutes before take-off was driving a cab around smoggy LA, now find themselves on a planet, Schulz-Lite, they had no idea existed any more than a nail salon on the North Pole. But time has its own exigencies, and if someone is to lead a rebellion against a maniacal tyrant and restore peace in a distant galaxy, why not be the two of them? And why not, as Einstein also was known to have said, in the midst of intense confusion and rebellion, might they not each find love with two of the planet's most beautiful women?

KEN LUBER

After working summerstock in Wisconsin and Minnesota and a whirlwind round-the-world trip, Ken landed in LA and, while washing dishes in pizza joints, was selected as a Writer-Director Fellow, one of the first fifteen, to inaugurate the AFI.

There, he wrote the screenplay "The Well" for Canadian producers. He wrote and directed short films featuring actors Paul Winfield, Bonnie Bedelia and Rob Reiner. Ken wrote and directed the feature film Howzer, honored at the New American Directors series in NYC and later distributed by Warner Bros. He's written for TV shows "Knotts Landing" and "Family," directed the TV Tony Randall show and worked as an associate Writer-Producer and Director for CBS.

As a theatre director, he received the Inland Empire Theater Award for Excellence in Direction and, as well, the publisher's Award of Literary Excellence. Currently, he has two published novels, one of which was recently optioned for a teenage animated-TV series.

WALLY REDDY

Kevin James

Adam Sandler

Will Ferrell

Steve Carell

Keanu Reeves

The "Q"

Tracy Morgan

Kenan Thompson

Kevin Hart

Chris Rock

Will Smith

KY YAM KHAN

Rowan Atkinson

Simon Pegg

Jonah Hill

Ken Jeong

EL BENTACOY

Zoe Saldana

Jessica Biel

Amy Adams

Kerry Washington

Keri Russell

DEVA

Jenna Ortega

Sophia Ali

Paris Berelc

Lana Condor

Christine Ko

SIMILAR FILMS

CONTACT

LaTonja Sutton
Arnay Talent Agency
323.703.8383
&
Ken Luber
ken@kenluber.com